

MOLECULAR PROCESSES IN THE EARLY UNIVERSE¹

A. Dalgarno,² P. C. Stancil, and S. Lepp³

A review is presented of the processes that occur in the early Universe in the formation of neutral molecules and molecular ions in a gas mixture of hydrogen, deuterium, helium and lithium. Attention is drawn to processes for which more reliable data on reaction coefficients are needed.

1. Abstract of published paper: Stellar Evolution, Stellar Explosions and Galactic Chemical Evolution (Inst. Physics Pub., 1998), p. 137.

2. Harvard-Smithsonian Center for Astrophysics, Cambridge, MA.

3. University of Nevada, Las Vegas, NV.